GOLD TREASURE, LOST 17 YEARS AGO, RECOVERED

Is Taken From Hold Of Cruiser Which Took Kitchener Down

New York, April 26—(AP)—Recovery of gold from H. M. S. Hampshire, the British warship which carried Earl Kitchener to his death in the North Sea during the World War, was disclosed today. The salvaged treasure amounted to 15,000 pounds sterling, the first to be taken from the Hampshire's strong boxes. Its recovery brought to the world the first authentic information that Kitchener carried a large treasure on his ill-fated mission to Russia to help bolster up the Russian armies in the cause of the allies.

Discovery of the gold was disclosed in authoritative advices from Europe, a laconic message that might have been taken from a ship's log. The only other detail it carried was that there was rejoicing among the crew of the salvage ship.

To Clear A Name

The search resulted not from the lure of sunken treasure, but from the determination of a man to clear the name of a relative he said was accused of having given information to the Germans and thus aided in sending Kitchener to his death in one of the major tragedies of the World War nearly 17 years ago.

The names of the participants in that effort at vindication have not been disclosed. As the story goes, it began four years ago, when this man determined to locate the Hampshire and settle the question of how the Hampshire was sunk. He proceeded, even though the records show that the warship struck a mine.

Beginning methodically, he first sought every sailor connected with mine layers in the district of the West Orkney islands during the war. After long and fruitless effort he was about to give up, when finally he located a man who had worked on a mine layer that had operated in the district.

Story In Scrapbook

The sailor had kept a scrap book record of every mine ship had laid, and after a search the old scrapbook was located in the attic of the sailor's home in Germany.

Armed with this information, the relative interested in fishing captain in his quest and soundings were taken. It was a long and arduous process, but finally he located what he believed was the wreck of the Hampshire. Going down in a diving suit, he recovered a piece of a corroded smokestack which convinced him his find was genuine.

Then came the effort to interest someone with capital in the venture, but it was only after the relative learned the Hampshire carried gold that he received any backing.

Salvage operations since have been going on at a feverish rate, but the depth of the sea, the shifting of the ocean's bottom and the heavy armor of the ship have somewhat hampered progress.

New York, April 26—(AP)—A treasure in gold that has lain at the bottom of the sea since H. M. S. Hampshire sank with Earl Kitchener during the World War is finally being salvaged, said reports received here today.

Apparently authoritative advices said that a salvage ship, working off the coast of the Orkney islands at the scene of one of the war's major tragedies, brought to the surface yesterday $15,000 (sterling) in gold—the first batch of the treasure in the Hampshire's strong boxes. Scenes of jubilation took place among the overjoyed salvage crew, the advices said, as the yellow metal was exposed on deck to the rays of the sun for the first time in almost 17 years.

Details Lacking

Details of the salvage operations were lacking. Little publicity had been given here to any recent attempt to raise the Hampshire's strongboxes. It was recalled, however, that Charles Courtney, known as the "wizard locksmith," sailed from New York for Europe April 8, on a mysterious mission in connection with a treasure hunt. Courtney, who has been called on before to aid in opening safes from sunken ships, refused to disclose the object of his journey, but

Lee Center Woman Accused Of Being "Past Master" In Use Of "Cuss" Words By Husband

Swan Sandberg Files Unique Answer To Wife's Bill

Swan Sandberg, for many years prominent blacksmith in the village of Lee Center, through his attorney, has filed in the Circuit Clerk's office, a reply to a suit brought by his wife Eleanor Sandberg, in which she seeks separate maintenance. The answer to the bill is unusual in court annals and the reply in part is as follows:

Sandberg denies extreme and repeated cruelty toward the complainant, stating that her life has never been unsafe. He denies having accused his wife of being unchaste and a dissolute woman, but charges that she at one time carried on correspondence with one Tury Tealander, against the protests of the defendant and did invite Tealander to the home of the defendant, where further allegations are made.

The bill charges that the complainant did resort to violence and did strike the defendant with a butcher knife and a stove poker, that she threw soap at him on numerous and divers occasions, that she assaulted and beat him with her hands and fists and with any other weapons of which she could avail herself, the exact date and time and place, except their home, not being specified.

Alleged Assault

On March 26, 1933, the bill alleges, the complainant, her son-in-law, George A. King and one Toge Sandberg, came to the house of the defendant and although the defendant requested them to leave the house, they began physical violence which resulted in the defendant being thrown to the floor with great violence; that the said King seized hold of the feet of the defendant and held him while the said Toge Sandberg pounded the defendant's head upon the floor and twisted his hands, fingers and arms, greatly injuring them so that they became black and blue and much swollen, and other damages to the defendant then and there did, and before and during said melee the said complainant encouraged the said King and Toge Sandberg to beat and bruise the defendant and to assault him with all their might and main.

Denies Brutality

Sandberg denies brutal treatment to his wife, physical or otherwise, and in his bill states that he always provided his home with all of the necessities, many of them luxuries, such as automobiles, radio, victrola, piano, expensive floor coverings, and has always maintained his home and the complainant with all of the necessities and many of the luxuries incident to human life, as now practiced. In further answering the separate maintenance bill, Sandberg states that it is true that he used "cuss" words toward the complainant, but that the "cuss" words used by him were pale and insignificant, rather than offense, and that the complainant was a "past grand master" in the use of "cuss" words, profanity, vulgarity and abominable epithets, that she could use two "cuss" words to the defendant's one.

Bellefonte, Ill., April 26—(AP)—Louis P. Zerweck, State Attorney, has made public a reputed confession of Mrs. Englebert Neuwirth of Freeport, Ill., that she sold $8,500 in bonds belonging to her father-in-law, Daniel Neuwirth, Freeport farmer.

The State's Attorney said last night that Mrs. Neuwirth, 26 years old and the mother of three children, had admitted she used the proceeds for living expenses while her husband was unemployed. She was held here in default of $1,000 bond. She allegedly obtained the bonds in September, 1930, on her promise to keep them safely and attending to clipping the coupons.

High school students who will conduct the affairs of the city of Dixon Saturday, occupying all of the departments, attended last evening's regular council session in large numbers. Some of the student officers-elect were given seats with the council where they closely observed the transaction of the business.

Two amended ordinances were presented to the council, one being passed and the other deferred until next week to permit the Commission of Public Health & Safety to investigate its contents. CORONER'S INQUEST A verdict finding that death was due to a fracture of the skull sustained on April 16 while James Willie Phelps, 35-year-old Dixon state hospital epileptic patient, was suffering from a seizure, was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday afternoon at the Jones funeral home.

Staff physicians from the institution conducted an autopsy which revealed the fatal injury.

The canine population of Dixon has suffered a falling off of exactly 100 dogs, male and female of all colors and breeds, according to the report of City Dog Catcher Charles Myers. Stray dogs which have been a source of continued complaint for years, have been taken to the city pound which is located north of the city at the dump ground, where they are destroyed if not reclaimed.

BENEFIT PICTURE

The committee from the Dixon Loyalty League in charge of the community kitchen today announced a benefit picture to be shown at the Dixon Theater Thursday, May 4. The proceeds from the show will be used exclusively in the operation of the kitchen, the funds for which are very low. The city is being divided into districts who will select workers. It is planned to sell at least five tickets in each block in the city. The plan is a worthy one and is necessary for the continuation of the kitchen program as outlined at present.

Trio Of Fighting Ball Players Out

Chicago, April 26—(AP)—President William Harridge of the American League today indefinitely suspended Buddy Myer, Washington infielder; Ben Chapman, New York outfielder, and Earl Whitehill, also of the Senators, for their participation in a fight which ended in a riot during the Washington-New York game yesterday.

Dixie Walker of the Yankees was not suspended as reports to President Harridge said he went to the protection of Chapman and was not engaged in the fight.

President Harridge will leave for Philadelphia today, where the Yankees are playing, to extract a full report from the umpires.

After completing his investigation, Harridge said he would take definite action against the players involved.

HARMONITE IS GIVEN BIGGEST FINE BY JUDGE

D. D. Considine Must Pay Federal Court Fine Of $300

(Telegraph Special Service.) Freeport, April 26—Dennis D. Considine of Harmon, was the recipient of the heaviest fine to be imposed by Judge Charles Woodward, sitting in the district federal court at Freeport yesterday in the hearing of a large docket of liquor violation cases. The Harmon pool room operator was assessed a fine of $300. A charge of violation of parole, the outgrowth of alleged liquor law violations, is still pending against Considine in the Lee county court.

John Rife of Dixon, who pleaded guilty of a liquor charge Monday, was fined $250 and ordered to stand committed in jail until the fine is paid. Last week Rife told the court he did not remember selling liquor to anyone, but the man from whom he had purchased the liquor. The inference was that he had bought liquor from government agents. When questioned about this yesterday afternoon, Rife said he did not mean to intimate agents had sold liquor, thus backing down on his assertions of last week.

William Munday of Grand Detour and Dixon pleaded guilty to a liquor violation charge and his case is to be disposed of next week. Frank Catalina, indicted with Munday, pleaded not guilty, when arraigned before Judge Woodward.

Minn. Governor Defends Right To Confiscate Wealth

St. Paul, Minn., April 26—(AP)—Minnesota's Farmer-Labor Governor, Floyd B. Olson, Tuesday night asserted his right to declare martial law and confiscate wealth to provide relief and outlined the method he would use if he deemed such action necessary.

First Governor Olson stated "the Supreme Court already had decided a Governor's right to declare martial law to maintain peace and order and that there is 'ample precedent for such a course.'"

Then he described a possible situation where needy persons, unable to obtain relief from the state might "go out and take food for themselves."

"There would be a violation of law and order," the Governor stated "and it would be my right under the constitution to declare martial law, call out the militia, and seize wealth to buy food for persons to keep them from starving."

Publishers May Demand Payment For Radio Gossip

New York, April 26—(AP)—A resolution calling upon newspapers to accept radio broadcasting programs as advertising matter only was offered before the 47th annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association today by E. H. Harris, chairman of the organization's radio committee.

The committee also made five recommendations, urging protest against the selling or giving away of news to radio stations in advance of publication and that newspapers preserve at all costs their proprietary rights in news.

MACDONALD AND ROOSEVELT ARE IN FULL ACCORD

Line Up For A Seven-point Program For World Recovery

Washington, April 26—(AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald began his homeward journey to London today, leaving Washington at 11 A. M. CST. for New York.

Washington, April 26—(AP)—The United States and Great Britain lined up today for a seven-point world economic recovery program, embracing tariff reductions and higher silver prices.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister MacDonald ended their conversations with a declaration of understanding on agreements to be sought at the June world economic conference.

As they said goodbye the American and French economic experts attacked the problems.

Roosevelt and MacDonald declared for the following, in a statement distributed at the White House:

An increase in the general level of commodity prices.

Re-organization of commercial policies.

Reduction of tariffs, quotas and exchange restrictions.

World expansion of credit.

Capital expenditures by governments to stimulate business.

Re-establishment of an international monetary standard.

Improvement of the status of silver.

Their conversations "showed that our two governments were looking with a like purpose and a close similarity of method" at these objectives.

Parley "Fruitful"

Granting that "between the cup and the lip are many ships," MacDonald told newspapermen as he left the White House for London that his conversations had been "fruitful in a way I hardly believed possible when I came."

The same enthusiasm over the results of the Anglo-American negotiations was expressed by those close to Roosevelt.

Meanwhile, he prepared to sit down again this afternoon with former Premier Herriot of France to go into the same questions reviewed with MacDonald, and possibly others.

War debts relief for Great Britain, which was taken up last night by the President and Prime Minister, was not mentioned in their final statement.

World Parley June 12

It has been agreed between them and Herriot that the world economic meeting held at London, June 12.

Today's joint declaration named an increase in the general level of commodity prices as its first and fundamental objective.

"To this end," they said, "Simultaneous action needs to be taken both in the economic and in the monetary fields."

The Roosevelt-MacDonald program also proposed new commercial policies, lessening of tariff restrictions, a world expansion of credit through central banks to enable less wealthy nations to join in the revival of world trade, stabilization of international currencies and rehabilitation of silver.

Projecting their understandings reached in Washington into the world economic conference for fulfillment, the two statesmen expressed the hope that this parley can convene in June.

Former Rockford Bankers Accused

FREEPORT—Embezzlement was charged against two former Rockford, Ill., bankers in indictments returned by a Federal grand jury. The defendants were: Raymond P. Johnson, former official of the Rockford National Bank, accused of embezzling $1,000, and Charles W. Little, formerly associated with W. Little, formerly associated with the Third National Bank of Rockford, charged with embezzling $2,000.

Fists And Clubs Fly But No One Is Reported Injured

Chicago, April 26—(AP)—Chanting a battle-cry of "pay your taxes!" 2,500 Chicago teachers today stormed the offices of the Chicago Title & Trust Company in the loop. Several hundred swarmed up the stairways to the second floor, executive offices and fists flew as police elected them.

Several women fainted and were carried out into the street; plate glass windows were broken and traffic came to a standstill.

Several policemen lost their caps and had their uniforms torn as they tried to restore order among the militant teachers. Clubs were wielded, but no one was injured.

Thrust out, and the doors of the Trust Company barricaded, the teachers milled about in the street before continuing their march through the downtown district.

The teachers explained their demonstration was prompted by the fact that considerable property controlled by the Trust Company was delinquent in taxes.

School officials have declared that prompt payment of taxes would mean enough cash in the school board coffers to pay teachers a substantial part of the back salaries due them.

Order Restored

Order was finally restored and a committee of nineteen headed by John M. Fawkes, a teacher and generalissimo of the demonstrators, was admitted to the private office of Gen. Abel Davis, chairman of the Trust Company, to present their protests.

As the teachers packed outside waiting word from their representatives conferring within, Holman D. Pettibone, president of the company, appeared in a window and shouted down, through a megaphone:

"Our company has paid all taxes due that are not being protested. I thank you."

Small groups of the teachers detached themselves from the mass and proceeded to the First National bank. There, barred doors confronted them and only those with passbooks were admitted. About 200 stood outside.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki today summoned a representative of the Title & Trust Company to appear before him and explain why back taxes of about $10,000,000 on property controlled by the company were not paid. Owners of other large properties, with back taxes of about $2,300,000 also were called in.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney said grand jury action would be forthcoming if any evidence of conspiracy were uncovered by Judge Jarecki.

TO VOTE ON CLOSING

Chicago, April 26—(AP)—Huge forces were working for and against the proposed closing of Chicago's schools in the name of economy as the Board of Education prepared to vote today on a resolution to turn the 500,000 pupils out of their classrooms from May 12 to October 1.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly declared that local banks would buy additional tax warrants, upon which payment of $30,000,000 in back salaries to teachers is contingent, as soon as the state legislature and the State's Attorney did something to enforce tax payments.

The Mayor also said the school budget should be cut from 20 to 25 per cent.

"If tax collections are only going to be 60 per cent of the levies, the budget should be cut to fit those figures," he said. "Of course it would hurt, but if you were in private business you'd have to do the same thing."

On the other hand, Orville J. Taylor, president of the school trustees, said that he favored the early closing and late opening of schools this year and estimated $9,000,000 would be saved in salaries by the move.

He made it plain that the entire responsibility for the city educational moratorium would rest on the shoulders of the legislature.

BABY'S EYE MAY NOT HAVE BEEN REMOVED IN TIME TO SAVE LIFE

New York, April 26—(AP)—Helen Vasco, two-year-old girl whose eye trouble has become the concern of half the nation, was reported in a "satisfactory" condition today after an operation that removed her left eye.

DELEGATES WILL BE ELECTED BY STATE-AT-LARGE

Assembly Adopted Legislation And Completed Beer Bill

Springfield, Ill., April 26—(AP)—Both houses of the legislature today passed bills providing for the election on June 5 of delegates to a state convention to vote on ratification of repeal of national prohibition.

Overwhelming majorities, obtained in the House and Senate, removed all doubt that one of the duplicate bills would be given final legislative approval this week.

Voting 121 to 22, the House passed the Schnackenberg-Sinnett bill providing for election in June of 50 delegates-at-large to a repeal convention July 10.

The Senate had passed an identical bill earlier in the day, 40 to 5.

Passed Beer Bill

The Senate also passed and sent to Governor Horner the bill he asked in order that the sale of legal beer can be regulated and licensed by the state.

Speaker Arthur Roe of the House appointed a committee of three to confer with the Senate and the Governor and decide which branch of the legislature should hold a midnight session Thursday to complete legislative action on the repeal measure.

Both houses reversed previous action and deferred to the demand of Horner that a vote on the proposed anti-prohibition amendment should not be delayed.

Delegates will be elected during the June judicial election and the ratification convention will be held the next month at the State House, the duplicate bills provide.

In the Senate the Ward bill received six more than the necessary two-thirds vote required to put the bill into effect immediately. The influence of administration backing in the House was shown by nineteen extra votes.

Senators' Position

Senators Thomas P. Gunning of Princeton and M. M. Mason of Oakley, Republicans, and J. S. Mundy, Marshall Democrat, spoke against the prohibition ratification measure, contending the issue should not conflict with the judicial election on June 5.

Richey V. Graham of Cicero, president pro tem, and other advocates of the Ward bill made only brief remarks during the debate, saying a special election would cost the state a million dollars.

Report Head Of Santa Fe To Quit

Chicago, April 26—(AP)—William B. Storey, president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad, was quoted by the Chicago Tribune today as saying he "was not in a position either to confirm or deny" a report that he would resign as head of the line.

The Tribune said that it had received reports from Topeka that Storey would resign and that he would be succeeded by Samuel T. Bledsoe, Chairman of the Executive Committee and General Counsel for the railroad.

Bledsoe is in New York. He became General Counsel for the line in 1918 and was elected to the executive committee in 1930 when he moved from Chicago to New York.

New York, April 26—(AP)—Samuel T. Bledsoe, chairman of the executive committee and General Counsel of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway, declined to comment here today on the report that he would succeed William B. Storey as president of the road. Storey, according to the report, will resign his position at a meeting of the board of directors here May 2.

"The subject is not one on which I care to express an opinion," said Bledsoe.

In railway circles here it would not be surprising if a shift were made in the management of the Santa Fe. It is known that Storey, because of his age, has indicated a desire to be relieved of the active direction of the road, and Bledsoe is held to be a logical successor.

CONGRESSMEN OF ILLINOIS FIGHT CANADIAN CANAL

They Are Discouraged, However, Over Progress Of Battle

Washington, April 26—(AP)—Discouragement over the progress of their fight against the St. Lawrence waterway treaty and talk of action to balk the expenditure of American money in foreign lands were heard today among middle western Congressmen.

While Senators living in states served by the Illinois and Mississippi waterways appeared solidly opposed to ratification of the treaty with Canada, Senator Dieterich, Democrat of Illinois said he feared proponents of the measure would win in the end.

"And once it is ratified," he added, "there appears to be no ethical way of blocking construction of the channel."

Dieterich, like other Senators of the middle west, declared he was fighting ratification of the treaty because it made Lake Michigan an international body of water, gravely impaired the usefulness of the Illinois river, and by radically diminishing diversion from the lake, and called for "tremendous expenditures" of money in Canadian territory without materially benefitting the middle west.

For Canadian Labor

"Aside from the issue of whether the middle west derives waterway benefits," Dieterich added, "I am vigorously opposed to the treaty because it calls for spending American money for Canadian labor. America needs all the money she can get for employing her own men."

Representative Nesbit, Democrat of Illinois, said he, too, opposed the treaty for that reason.

Representative Leo Allen, Republican of Illinois, took a different view.

"Whether we're obligated or not," he said, "I could never vote in favor of an appropriation which would demoralize the usefulness of the Illinois waterway. Any Illinois Congressman would be a foolish individual to favor a project which, in its entirety, slaps the people of the Illinois and Mississippi valleys in the face."

one report said that he would take part in an expedition to obtain the Hampshire's gold.

After 17 Years

It was almost 17 years ago—June 5, 1916—that the Allies were stunned by the loss of Kitchener, who went down with the cruiser Hampshire a few minutes after the vessel hit a German mine off the Orkneys, a group of islands north of Scotland.

Kitchener, famous statesman and Field Marshal, who had won acclaim as one of England's great soldiers by his exploits in Egypt, India and South Africa, was then serving as British secretary of War. He was on a secret mission to Russia when the disaster occurred.

Mooney has consistently refused to apply for a parole on the ground such a step would indicate he was guilty. Convicted of murder on the first indictment, he was sentenced to be hanged but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment after President Wilson intervened.

Top Chic For Street Wear

(From STERN BROTHERS, New York)

Topping the mode this spring are street costumes whose waist treatment and hats are definitely new and intimately related to each other.

Coat frocks have distinctive chic and popularity right now. A crisp white pique vestee gives tremendous dash to this corded sheer coat frock—and at the same time is very practical for it may be removed for laundering simply by unfastening the two huge pearl buttons that anchor it at the beltline. Under cuffs of pique finish the flaring sleeves. Very smart is the white hat made of the same pique.

The square, solidly cape suit with organ pleating stopped the show at Schiaparelli's Paris opening. This copy is handsome navy blue crepe, the dress made with pastel pink crepe top tied in a "bag" neckline. The removable cape has a big satin bow. The flattering little chapeau is shiny blue, all draped to a high hat line.

New Legislation May Control Child Welfare Program

Miss Violet Thorpe of this city, state child welfare department agent, told members of the Dixon Kiwanis club yesterday afternoon the importance of passage of several bills now pending before the Senate at Springfield. Declaring many of the present laws enacted in 1872 as being antiquated and hap-hazard, Miss Thorpe briefly reviewed about a dozen bills now pending and the attempt being made to inaugurate new legislation which will control the child welfare program in Illinois. The proposed legislation is the result of lengthy investigation by authorities in the interests of child welfare and with a view of keeping politics out of the program, she said.

In the future the state and the people are bound to pay for defects in children resulting from bad nutrition during the depression, Miss Thorpe stated. It is the plan to keep children in homes and not to commit them to institutions. Experience has shown that this method can be carried on much cheaper than the institutional care, she stated. The principal is widely recognized and has been found to be equally if not more efficient and a greatly reduced cost.

The speaker explained the provisions of several of the more important bills calling particular attention to the county public welfare measure drafted for the purpose of providing and administering direct child welfare relief placing the work directly in the hands of a county director and a commission and taking it completely out of politics. At the present time she stated, there was no uniform policy of administration. Referring to the mother's pension act, Miss Thorpe stated that a new bill was pending in the Senate which, if passed would reduce this expenditure of public funds.

And Mrs. Leon Hart said the other day quoting one of her favorite writers, "We have to take the bitter with the better." That is a new one. It used to be "The bitter with the sweet."

Spring is Nature's beginning of a new year, of new life and truly, it is the season of flowers. It is surprising what a lot of white hyacinths, a blue bowl of red tulips or a statelily plant will do for your rooms. It will bring spring indoors for you.

The brightest memory of today's walk was the smile on the face of a little child, who stood with her nose glued to a window pane on the other side of which reposed some chocolate bunnies, be-sprinkled with tiny red and white confetti.

THE QUESTION OF INFLATION.

The most pressing question at Washington these days has to do with currency inflation; and so far has the tide carried us in the last few months, the chief point at issue now is not whether we are to have inflation, but how the inflation is to be attained.

One group is plunking for out-and-out inflation of the traditional type, with a devalued dollar, a flood of printing press money and so on.

The other group—which seems to include the administration—evidently prefers to get virtually the same result in a different way. It is banking on vast bond issues for public works and other projects, on the price-raising provisions of the farm bill, on minimum-wage and short-week regulations.

Of the two programs, the latter seems to be the safer. Straightout inflation is generally pretty hard to control. When you start it you run the risk of being unable to stop it—and if that happens you eventually find yourself in more than you were in in the first place.

But the interesting thing is the fact that practically everybody seems to be in one or the other of these two camps. Those voices which, a few months ago, were loud in opposition to inflation of any kind are stilled now. The nation as a whole is about ready to admit that inflation of some kind is inevitable, and that the only problem now is to decide what kind to adopt.

Economists have pointed out that the only alternative to inflation is a continuing deflation of industrial wages and retail prices.

Wholesale commodity prices nowadays are down just about where they were at the beginning of the century. If we do not adopt any inflationary schemes to bring them up, all other prices must get down into line.

This would mean dollar-a-day wages for the mass of wage earners. It would mean retail prices such as our fathers and grandfathers knew. It would mean such sharp reductions in city, state and federal budgets that unemployment and hunger relief projects could get no more public funds. It would, in short, mean a terrific intensification of the nation's present difficulties.

Not even the most hard-boiled deflationist wants that. We have turned our faces in the other direction. Inflation seems to be coming; the only question now is what kind we are going to have.

OUR NEIGHBOR'S TROUBLES.

It isn't very likely that Congressman Hamilton Fish's demand for outright U. S. intervention in Cuba will be adopted. Any such program would present a great many thorns to the hands that tried to grasp it, and the government at Washington today has, beyond question, all the troubles it cares to handle without going out of its way to find any more.

Nevertheless, Congressman Fish is quite right in calling our attention to the fact that Cuban affairs have reached a critical situation; and he is likewise right in pointing out that the United States has a pretty direct responsibility there.

We gave Cuba her freedom some 35 years ago; we have something of an obligation to see that that freedom is kept inviolate. Just how we are to do that without infringing on Cuban sovereignty and stirring up a new batch of trouble is something of a problem.

INVITING TERRORISM.

The news that an attempt on the life of Adolf Hitler was thwarted by German police leads one to hope that, in the interest of the oppressed minorities in that suffering country, no more such attempts are made—and, above all, that no such attempt ever succeeds.

That Hitler should be a target for assassins is not, everything considered, to be wondered at; but that no one could do the German minorities a worse turn than by trying such an act of violence ought to be obvious. So far the Nazi oppression, grievous though it has been, has been kept within certain limits. An assassination, or even an attempted assassination, would provide an excellent excuse for tossing all such limits in the discard. Autocracy's commonest reply to such a threat is unbridled terrorism. One shudders to think what might happen to German Jewry if the Nazi leadership should think itself justified in making such a reply.

People say that inflation leads to trouble and distress; but I say that unless we can halt the fall of prices, the distress ahead will be far worse than anything we can foresee.—Senator Borah of Idaho.

Not one acre in eight of our original forests remains and the percentage of this remnant devastated each year is greater than the year before.—Lieut.-Col. George P. Ahren.

The wonderful content of minerals that is found in beer makes beer a fit food for human consumption.—Dr. William I. Sirovich, New York city congressman.

The brewers alone could not alter the drinking habits of the nation.—Col. Jacob Ruppert, president U. S. Brewers Association.

The animal parade soon stopped and Mister Midget Man then hopped up to the 'Tiny Tinkles' and said, "Now, watch my wee giraffe."

"At my command he'll start to prance and then he'll do a funny dance. If you will keep your eyes on him, I know he will make you laugh."

"All right," cried Coppy. "Start the fun and show us how the dance is done. Gee! This is like a circus. We should have peanuts to eat."

"I'll get some," said the Midget Man. "I'll run as quickly as I can, right to my house and shortly I will come back with a treat."

It seemed it was no time at all until once more they heard him call. "Well, here they are, lads. Eat your fill. I have a whole lot more."

"Don't eat the shells. They are not so good. Just swallow 'em, as you should." And then the beast began to dance, which made the Tinkles roar.

of it takes grit and grace, but it can be done. Philip Brooks wanted to be a teacher. He tried it and failed — failed completely. The pulpit was his second best, but he became a great, golden-hearted preacher, one of the greatest that ever lived.

Sir Walter Scott did not want to write novels. He wanted to be a poet, but gave it up. "Byron beat me," he said; and so he turned to writing novels. He was so ashamed of it that he published his first stories anonymously. His novels made him famous and beloved the world over, but he always had a little hurt in his heart—the broken dream of a poet. The records of biography are full of example of the same kind.

It is folly to give up and do nothing, or let our hearts sour, because we cannot do the thing we some of us love to read, was a clerk for thirty years in the British Admiralty. He was in the prime of his days, the most creative period of his life. But in his diary he dismissed those years in four words, "I never liked it." At last he got free and retired to a lovely home in Surrey, and spent the last ten years of his life writing the stories he had longed to write.

Few men do what they want to do; they have to make a second choice. To take the broken plan, the left-over of a disappointed ambition, and make a great thing out wanted to do. The man who is sorry for himself is sick. To hold a grudge against life because we could not have our way, is silly. Even an oyster turns its hurt into a pearl. Maybe we could not have done what we wanted to do as well as we are doing the thing we have to do. We are not the best judges of our own gifts.

My late friend Gungahus, of Chicago, wanted to teach English in a little college and write poetry. He would have been a minor poet; he became a master of the pulpit—the best known citizen of his city if not the best beloved. Do the job you are set to do, whatever it may be, putting your whole life into it. In this way one can turn his lot in life into a romantic plot, rich in meaning and radiant in results.

A BOOK A DAY

Jesse Lilienthal, writer, not long ago said he wished some day to write the biography of a "plain, earthly sort of person." Someone answered his wish by introducing him to Malinda Jenkins. As a result he collaborated with her on her autobiography, which is presented now under the title, "Gambler's Wife," and it is as racy and entertaining a book as you will find all spring.

Malinda Jenkins was 83 when Lilienthal met her. When he asked she told him that he could have every morning, but that she always went to the races in the afternoon.

For this spry and salty old lady may have been unknown to fame, but she could hardly be called undistinguished. Her books tell of a long and eventful life, which began in an Indiana farmhouse, carried her all over the United States, took her to Alaska during the gold rush and wound up by making her a successful owner of race horses.

She married a never-do-well back in Indiana, divorced him, married an aging Texas business man and after his death she married Jenkins, the gambler; "Jenky," who stayed a stranger through 43 years of marriage and always kept her guessing, but who "loved me as much as a gambler could love anything outside of four aces."

For years she fought to keep Jenky from gambling. At last she gave it up—and decided she didn't care. They had their ups and their downs; some of the time only her energy and business sense supported them. But they grew rich in Alaska and their old age was very happy.

This book is a genuine slice of life, and I don't see how you can fail to like it.

Just received large consignment of beautiful colored paper for pantry shelves and bureau drawers. B. F. Shaw Printing Co.

GASTRIC FLU

There is a certain amount of disagreement among medical authorities as to whether there is such a thing as gastric influenza.

Nevertheless, common experience shows that there is a type of gastro-intestinal disturbance associated with influenza.

The distinguishing features of gastric influenza are, that to begin with, it is not a disease singularly confined to the abdomen. Primarily the body as a whole is affected. The early symptoms are those of influenza, namely, headache, malaise, muscular pains and a mild degree of fever. The gastro-intestinal disturbances follow these symptoms.

Clinically, we find that the abdominal disturbance is found generally associated with evidence of disturbance, in the throat and the chest. The abdominal symptoms, however, usually overshadow the rest.

The patient complains of discomfort or pain in the pit of the stomach. There may be some slight vomiting, the appetite is poor or completely lacking and the patient feels and appears depressed.

There may be severe pains due to spasms of the colon. Under certain circumstances these colonic pains may resemble an attack of appendicitis.

The patient requires a doctor to differentiate between the pains of an acute appendicitis and those due to gastro-intestinal flu.

It is possible that both conditions may be co-existent. Indeed, the patient might have an acutely infected appendix and suffer at the same time an attack of influenza. In such instances, therefore, it is not safe to charge the symptoms to intestinal flu.

The sufferer from gastric influenza requires dietetic support. In general, liquid and semi-liquid foods are tolerated well.

The patient should not drug himself for the condition. When the dyspepsia is acute and while waiting for the physician, the old standby of rhubarb and soda can offer some temporary relief.

Tomorrow—The Colon.

It is estimated that more than 4,000 divorce suits will be filed in England this year.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—Ever since President Roosevelt embarked on his breath-taking course in asking that his authority to deal with the "emergency" be broadened, a favorite topic on Capitol Hill has been that of how congress has been steadily signing away its powers.

Democrats as well as Republicans have sounded their warnings. But despite their expressed fears, they have gone along with the President's requests.

"He has asked for this bill to be passed," more than one has said, "and, so far as I am concerned, it shall be done."

It is a mistaken idea, however, for anyone to believe that congress has become a mere rubber stamp for the President during these weeks since March 4.

And nothing more clearly demonstrated this fact than Roosevelt's sudden and dramatic suspension of the gold standard.

Inflation Expected

It has been predicted by many in close contact with congress, that some sort of currency inflation

Here was something to be reckoned with.

Then 59 or so democrats of the house, advocates of inflation, held a rump caucus. Presumably this caucus was to organize opposition to stricter rules in the house proposed by the leadership. Its effect was to cause the leadership to abandon such plans.

The handwriting was to be seen on the wall. Mr. Roosevelt and his advisers did see it, and acted.

He applied an export gold embargo, with the implication that a "managed inflation" of the currency could be expected.

Congress had shown that it was still in the saddle.

CHICAGO JUDGE GAVE LECTURE HERE LAST EVE

Judge Greene's Theme
Christian Science,
Religion Of Joy

The seating capacity of the First Church of Christ, Scientist of this city was taxed by the large audience which gathered there last evening to hear an eloquent lecture on "Christian Science: The Religion of Joy," delivered by Judge Samuel W. Greene, C. S. B., Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Judge Greene, a prominent Chicago jurist and an orator of force and conviction, said in part:

Christian Science is that presentation of the truth about God and man which is enabling men and women to find joy in the understanding of God's presence here and now. Many of us have been accustomed to think of religion as being dull, burdensome, and depressing. Christian Science is demonstrating that there is hope, joy and gladness in religion. When we read the Psalms' words, and realize what joy he found in the service of God, and in the house of his Maker, it seems strange that religion has not these compensating graces. Surely the difficulty is that religion has largely failed to correctly interpret God.

The Discoverer

The Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy, is one of those world figures, whose words and works are convincing proofs that she saw the joyful vision. Her system of teaching and her expounded theology may not have been in accord with the accepted orthodoxy of her day, but what would have been the fate of other great leaders had they been rated by the world as by their contemporary theologians? What of Jesus or Paul or Luther? Mrs. Eddy's revelation came to her in an hour of great human need. When all else had failed to bring her health, peace, and joy, she turned to God's Word for comfort and for healing. As she studied the words and works of Jesus of Nazareth, there came to her the understanding that Jesus had come to teach the world anew the great lesson of God's ever-presence and omnipotence. She saw how Jesus' work supplemented and made perfect the great vision of God's allness as it had been interpreted by earlier students, such as Moses, Samuel, Elijah and Elisha. She saw how Paul had been able to reconcile the revelation of the Christ with the teaching and the practice of these earlier prophets and wise men. Then there came the conviction of the practical nature of Jesus' teaching, and how little the religionists of her time were so regarding it. Filled with the knowledge of the ever present availability of God's power, she turned her thought absolutely to God, and away from all material means, and presently her first healing experience came. It was not a final deliverance from all her ills, nor was it the full understanding of Christian Science as she later learned it. In her improved physical condition there came gradually the consciousness that she had discovered and had put into actual practice the same truth or law which governed Jesus and enabled Him to be the healer of sin, disease and death. As she studied, she saw more clearly the import of Jesus' words, "The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do; for what thingssoever He doeth, these also doeth the Son likewise," also, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also."

The Textbook

Perhaps the work of Mrs. Eddy's that is more generally known to the world than any other is the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." This book was her effort to give the vision, or revelation to the world so that all who would, might know the practical value of an understanding of God, as He is revealed in the teachings of Jesus and of the prophets and apostles. The study of the Christian Science textbook instead of lessening one's interests in the Bible increases it. Instead of destroying one's respect for the Bible it creates a new and genuine love for it. Its spiritual interpretation of the Bible is not a distortion of the text to suit the teachings of Christian Science. It is the discovering and revealing of sacred and usable truths. It is spiritual apprehension, even as indicated by Paul in his letter to the Corinthians: "But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit; for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God."

A careful reading of the textbook usually opens one's consciousness to a welcome reception of the revealed truth; and in this improved understanding he frequently finds himself healed. There are many interesting instances of such healing on record in the files of The Christian Science Publishing Society, and dozens of such healings are given in testimonies printed in the back of the Christian Science textbook in the chapter called "Fruitage."

No adequate or comprehensive estimate of the textbook will be attempted in the time allotted here, but it is fair to state that during its circulation of fifty years, it has been widely read and studied, and has undoubtedly been a leavening influence in many lines of human thinking.

A serious study of the Bible, with its spiritual interpretation as given in the textbooks, reveals to the student that there is available for all seekers a concept of God that is understandable, lovable, believable, and usable. Surely, this is the answer to the unfulfilling prayer of the weary wanderer thirsting in the de-

Man-made Land, Wrested From Bottom Of Lake Michigan, Turned Into Garden Paradise For Chicago's World's Fair

CHICAGO, April 26.—Transformation of nearly four hundred acres of barren, sandy, man-made land—wrested from the bottom of Lake Michigan—into a garden spot of velvety lawns, hundreds of trees, shrubbery and brilliant flower-beds!

Such was the task confronting landscape engineers and horticulturists at Chicago's 1933 World's Fair—A Century of Progress, a few short weeks ago—a task which will see completion before the gates swing open to the millions on June 1.

Although the visitor will be thrilled by the myriad of exhibits and the startling new types of buildings, he will have little conception of the intricate problems solved by a small army of technicians to provide their restful, parklike setting. All the resources of modern scientific horticulture have been brought into play in order that the Exposition picture may be a composite scene of beauty.

One of the wonders being worked by the band of landscape magicians is the production of broad stretches of luxuriant green lawns from soil never before planted with seed of any kind—all within three weeks' time.

A made-to-order forest of hundreds of trees has sprung into existence on the Exposition grounds. During the winter days and nights, trucks, trailers and trains carried their tons of leafless skeletons through the country-side.

Fifty-Foot Trees

Fifty-foot elms from the forests to the north, hundreds of oaks, lindens and ash trees formed a part of the procession to Chicago. The finest products of American nurseries and country-side have been gathered by the experts who planned the modernistic, new type of World exposition.

The Fair site in itself presented many brain twisters to the men selected to perform this modern miracle. All of the acreage is newly made, having been pumped from the bottom of Lake Michigan by sand-suckers and by filling behind wooden and stone bulkheads. There was no soil suitable for growing plants. All was either sand or clay. It became necessary to bring in thousands of yards of top soil.

Use Circus Elephants

The animal kingdom was even called in to help along the building of this modern Arabian Nights spectacle. A circus was in town several Elephants were loaned by a circus to a Century of Progress officials to aid in moving huge trees for the beautification of Chicago's Exposition grounds.

When the sightseer strolls leisurely through the sunken gardens or rests beneath the shade of a fifty-year-old tree, he will be interested to know that before all this came into being, miles of drainage pipe and irrigation equipment had to be installed that all might be in continuous bloom throughout the summer and fall.

After the noted landscape architect, Alfred H. Goiffert, Jr., had studied the miniature models of the buildings and grounds, the next step was to place or "spot" toy-like trees at the locations where they would best bring out the architectural beauty of the buildings without detracting from their effectiveness. The four and a half miles of green hedges and other details were thus planned in model form before Herbert Schmitt, head of the Landscape division of the Exposition, started actual operations.

Everything has been carried on by schedule—nurseries in various sections of the Nation were given a quota of deliveries to be made on each day of the month. Planting speeded along at the grounds in a machine-like, precise order.

Use Circus Elephants

The animal kingdom was even called in to help along the building of this modern Arabian Nights spectacle. A circus was in town several months ago, when the active press-agent learned that some difficulty was being encountered in the handling of some of the larger trees.

"We'll send over the elephants if you need them," he informed Fair officials over the telephone. "It takes an elephant to do the kind of a job you fellows are up against. And besides, the circus will get some publicity out of it."

The offer was accepted. A herd of elephants was brought to the grounds and soon the animals were using their immense bodies to perform the tasks that would require many men.

The growing of grass in an almost incredible space of time in itself deserves particular mention, in telling the story of glorified gardening.

All during last summer, World's Fair horticulturists experimented on a plot of land similar in soil content to that found on the grounds. It was finally agreed that a good velvet-like lawn could be grown in the space of three weeks.

This feat is accomplished by mixing Pacey's rye grass, Kentucky blue grass, Dutch white clover, and fancy red top seed. In order to retain the moisture necessary for rapid and continuous growth, a large quantity of German peat moss was imported and placed as a base. The effect is startling. Grass grows so luxuriantly that a planting on May 1 means that by June 1 the Exposition's thirty acres of lawn will have to be moved once at least.

Grass in Three Weeks

The speed with which a lawn can be established from seed in three weeks is in startling contrast to the old-fashioned sodding methods used to create the stretches of greenward at the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893.

An "Avenue of Color" one thousand feet long will be an attractive feature of the outdoor display. This striking lane will be bordered by three types of brilliant gladiolas, early season, midseason and late, to insure a continuous array of blooms throughout the entire Exposition period. This lane will extend south from the Hall of Science.

On Northerly Island, across the sparkling lagoon from the Fair proper, are thirty or more flower gardens, forming one of the exhibits surrounding the beautiful Horticultural Building. One of the larger gardens will consist of more than 5,000 rosebushes, the exhibit of an Iowa nursery. Another large garden will be the modern Italian type, while Peony, Gladiola and Dahlia societies will each have their own colorful gardens.

the beginning that healing does not come as a result of pleading with God, and begging His mercy or His favor, according to the accustomed forms of prayer in the orthodox churches. Prayer in Christian Science is correctly stated in the opening sentence of the Christian Science textbook, "The prayer that reforms the sinner and heals the sick is an absolute faith that all things are possible to God, a spiritual understanding of Him, an unselfed love" (Science and Health p. 1). Surely, this is after the manner of Jesus' teaching; for time and again do we find him saying, "According to your faith be it unto you," or, "Because of your faith you are healed; or, 'To him that believeth,' 'all things are possible.' Finally, he summarized it all in that remarkable verse in the eleventh chapter of Mark, 'What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them.'"

CLEANSING

From TWENTY

FORTIES

You can retain a YOUTHFUL SKIN

More than 500,000 women in the past three years have become enthusiastic users of Denton's Magnesia creams. Why? Because they found them not just "another cream" among hundreds, but something entirely different. They cleanse the complexion by dissolving dirt through the scientific action of magnesium salts, not merely loosening or rubbing it off or out, as other creams do.

Women, especially those nearing the dangerous thirties, can actually witness the transformation of their complexions, the disappearance of coarse texture, crepey necks, enlarged pores and sagging tissues. And instead, through these new greaseless cleansing and nourishing creams, there comes the soft glowing natural skin of youth itself!

Give Denton's a thorough trial for a week or ten days. Compare it with your present favorite cream (no matter how expensive), then go back (if you can) to old fashioned creams. You will find them economical, too; morning and evening use cost less than a cent a day. Sold on money back guarantee at leading department and drug stores.

TWO DUAL TRACK MEETS TO OPEN DIXON'S SEASON

Mendota And Tampico
Schools Provide
The Opposition

By DON HILLIKER
Mendota and Tampico will furnish the opposition for Dixon high school's track and field athletes in a pair of dual meets next Friday and Tuesday afternoons, respectively. Both meets will be held on north side athletic field and will offer a preliminary to the N. C. I. meet in Mendota on Saturday, May 6. A small admission fee will be collected to defray expenses of the two events.

Since the conclusion of the basketball season early in March the athletic activities in the local prep institution has centered on the track and field events. Last week the class meet gave the first opportunity for the aspirants to test their ability. Although it was a romp for the Senior members of the squad, some far marks were made by underclassmen. In the 100 yard dash Snader led the pack in 10.8 seconds. This is the best mark achieved in a class meet in three years in the century. Cooper, Strong and Thompson were only a short distance behind the winner. Stahl, a junior, traveled the quarter mile in 56.5 seconds, a good mark for such an early date. For the distance events the Juniors used Padgett with the result of winning both races. The diminutive star of the past two years took the half mile in 2:10 and the mile in 5:00. The other underclassmen in the winners' column were Henry and Underwood, who tied with Beech for first in the pole vault at 9 feet 8 inches.

Strong, district high jump recordholder, was the high point getter of the contest, netting five first places and one runner up position. He had to clear only 5 feet in his specialty but came through with good results in the broad jump, 20 feet 11 in., javelin, 147 ft. 5 in., shot put, 41 ft. 5 1/2 in., in the 220 yard dash, 25 seconds. Capt. Lyle Fordham was the victor in both hurdle events. Daniels tossed the platter 101 ft. 4 in. to take the discus throw. A senior relay crew of Cooper, Fordham, Whitebread and Strong ran the 880 yards in 1:42.8.

In the class tussles of 1931 and 1932 the records bettering the above were: 32, Williams won the 440 yard dash in 55.6; 32, Smith won mile in 4:56.6; 31, Plovman won high hurdles in 18.5 and lows in 29.4; 31, Senior relay team won in 1:41.3; 32, Daniels threw discus 49 ft. 3 in.; 32, Strong went 5 ft. 6 1/2 in. in high jump.

Indications before the start of the present season on Friday night point to a well balanced team. The 1932 squad, with Ogan as captain, upset all dual competition to ring up record of consecutive victories. The Friday and Tuesday meetings will present a good test as to Dixon's chances on May 6 when they defend their North Central crown and relay title won last year on the north side field.

Coaches Bowers, Sharpe and Lindal plan the following entries in the two dual affairs.

100 yard dash—Cooper, Snader, Thompson.
220 yard dash—Cooper, Thompson, Strong, Flanigan.

440 yard dash—Stahl, Ramsey, Williams.

880 yard run—Padgett, Ramsey, Morton, Covert, Warner.

1 mile run—Padgett, Fane, Tappiner, Robinson.

High hurdles—Fordham, E. Flanigan.

Low Hurdles—Fordham, Henry, Flanigan.

Relay—Thompson, Snader, Flanigan, Cooper, Strong.

High jump—Strong, Beech, Klein.

Broad jump—Strong, Flanigan, Underwood, Stahl.

Pole vault—Beech, E. Flanigan, Henry, Underwood.

Discus—Daniels, Weidman, Moss, Kennedy.

Shot put—Strong, Weidman, Kennedy, Bovey.

Javelin—Underwood, Strong, Daniels, Krug.

Last season Dixon trimmed Mendota in a dual meet 95-27. Tuesday's appearance against Tampico will be the first meeting of the two schools on the track.

If you have something to sell and are in a big hurry to sell it, let the classified advertising department of The Dixon Telegraph prove its ability as a speedy and efficient sales medium.

HAREFOOT YOU SAY?

HERE we have pictures of a football player and—what's that? Not Joe Cook imitating four Hawaiians! No it's the same football player Mickey McGuire, putting on the hula-hula for the boys at the University of Wisconsin. Mickey an Irishman born in Hawaii, and an All Big Ten halfback last fall, indicated how the hula-hula is performed for the benefit of the Haresfoot (what's that you say?) club at the university.

Hooks and Slides

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER
ABOUT FIGHTERS—

One of the interesting entertainments of the current season was watching Gorilla Jones trying to miss Ben Jeby in their no-contest at Cleveland. Try as he would, the Gorilla only managed to miss Mister Jeby's boot nose about half of the time. The authorities finally had them pitched out of the ring on their respective ears.

Max Baer will be easy for Max Schmeling. Subscribers should not be misled by Schmeling's showing against Sharkey. In that fight Mister Schmeling was trying to keep Sharkey from doing anything to him. In the fight with Baer, Herr Max will be fancy-free, with no title defense to fret him. He will find Baer the kind of willing fellow he can fight best—Baer being strictly a fighter—Schmeling should make mince meat of the gent.

OUTSMARTS HIMSELF—

Schmeling's serious mistake in his meeting with Sharkey was his own idea that Sharkey had to beat him to win the title—by that I mean, Max figured that he could ride along without too much effort, allowing the Boston sailor to make the play—and Max thought that if he held his opponent about even, he would retain the title—he was badly crossed up.

Schmeling is a better fighter than many imagine him to be—his only fault is caution—he is as durable as an iron hat—and as quick as lightning—with one of the best counter punches I ever saw—and a hard hitter.

TOO MUCH RESPECT—

He did not fight Sharkey as he should have because he was respectful of the go's boxing ability. He knew that Sharkey had beaten Dempsey up to the round where Sharkey lost his aplomb. Long enough to turn his head toward the referee to complain—so Max actually outsmarted himself—by visualizing Sharkey doing the same thing to him that Sharkey did to Dempsey.

Max is a clever boy and he knows that he will have to fight Baer because Baer demands that kind of competition—I think Max is stronger than Baer, and that he will win for that reason.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

If you have five friends, invite them to see the Kentucky Derby, from an individual box in the club house, set aside $93. The mezzanine is cheaper. They "recommen" perches on the mezzanine tier of the clubhouse (boxes of course) at a sawbuck per person. Seats in a box at the clubhouse downstairs retail at $15.50 per copy but wait! Why not let your friends sit upstairs in a clubhouse box—it will cost only $60 for the whole party. The general admission price for a common grandstand seat is $5.80—and six times that is $32.80.

New York Yankees and Washington Senators.

The fight, liveliest in the major leagues in many seasons, came as a late aftermath of the clash between Bill Dickey, Yankee catcher, and Carl Reynolds, then playing for Washington, last July 4.

Most Yankee-Senator games since then have been marked by harsh "riding" and occasional accusations of spiking that grew more frequent during the recent series. There was no violence, however, until Ben Chapman of the Yanks slid into Buddy Myer in the fourth inning yesterday when the Washington second-sacker was trying to make a throw to first for a double play.

Near Riot Followed

Myer took a kick at Chapman who came up with his fist flying. Before it was all over the two original combatants and Earl Whitehill and Fred Walker, who took important roles in a second outburst, had been banished from the game, police reserves had been called in to restore order, and several of the more active fans who joined the fray had been arrested.

Although President Will Harridge of the American League withheld comment pending receipt of the umpires' reports, it was expected that fines and perhaps suspensions would be handed out freely.

The Yankees, apparently, needed only some such spur to get them started for the rally that had just begun when the fighting broke out developed into a slugfest that netted the world champions a 16 to 9 victory as they poled out 21 hits, including homers by Lou Gehrig and Tony Lazzeri, while Russell Van Atta held the Senators to five blows.

Hitting Increases

Other teams in both leagues also began to hit more freely with some unexpected results. The Boston Red Sox pounded Lefty Grove off the hill in five innings and handed Philadelphia's Athletics a 6 to 4 trimming. Cleveland turned back the St. Louis Browns 4 to 1 when catcher Frank Pytlak, starting his first game, clouted a homer with two on base in the seventh inning.

Jim Bottomley pounded out his third homer with two board to clinch a 5 to 3 victor for Cincinnati over the Chicago Cubs. The St. Louis Cardinals, partly inspired by the return of Rogers Hornsby to action, and with Bill Hallahan on the mound to chalk up his third victory, hammered three pitchers for a 10 to 3 triumph over the league leading Pittsburgh Pirates. Young Hal Schumacher pitched the second place New York Giants to an 8-2 victory over Brooklyn, allowing only five hits. The Phillies handed the Boston Braves a 7-1 lacing as Dick Bartell clouted four doubles to equal the major league record and Virgil Davis cracked a homer with one on.

The Detroit-Chicago game in the American League was stopped by snow.

NINE OFFICIALS OF INSURANCE CO. FACE INDICTMENT

The Officers Of Defunct Security Life Accused Of Fraud

Chicago, April 26 —(AP)—Charges of conspiracy to defraud the Security Life Insurance Company of $1,700,000 in an alleged exorbitant appraisal of 19 pieces of Waukegan, Ill., real estate hung over the heads of nine officials of the firm and three affiliated companies today.

The indictments, containing 21 counts, were returned by a Criminal Court grand jury yesterday and capias for the arrest of the defendants were handed to State's Attorney's police by Chief Justice John Prystalski. He set release bond for each at $5,000.

Security Life officials indicted were: Machir J. Dorsey, Indianapolis, president; and C. Edwin Johnson, Paxton, Ill., vice president and Secretary of the Keystone Holding Co., of Hammond, Ind.

Others were: John W. Seids, Moline, Ill., secretary and treasurer of Edwin Hult & Co., Chicago; Bertam Day, Hammond, president of the Northern States Life Insurance Company of Hammond; Harry Tressel, Chicago, treasurer of Northern States; Harry W. Puttig, Muscatine, Ia., and Attorney John H. E. Lee, Chicago, stockholders in the Manufacturing Terminal Company; Charles R. Surface, Evanston and Edwin A. Hult of Hammond.

Both the Security Life and the Northern States company are defunct, the former having 45,000 policy holders in six mid-western states. The indictment charges that the defendants used the excessive appraisals on the Waukegan property in order to float bond issues.

Derby Gossip

Louisville, Ky., April 26 —(AP)—Excellent chances of becoming the fifth woman to own a Kentucky Derby winner were conceded Mrs. William Crump, owner of Head Play, and Mrs. John Hay Whitney, owner of Crowned Glory and Poppym.

These horses appear the best of those nominated for the 1933 Derby at Churchill Downs, May 6, by women owners. Others in this category training nicely for the Derby are Mrs. I. D. Sloan's "Cora's Ghost," Mrs. C. M. Amory's "Parity," and Mrs. H. Phipps' "Utopian."

None of the four eligibles of Mrs. Payne Whitney, who won the 1931 Derby with Twenty Grand, is expected to go to the post, each having developed illness or failed to prove of Derby caliber.

The only four women owners who have won Derbys are Mrs. C. E. Durnell with Elwood in 1904, Mrs. R. M. Hoots with Black Gold in 1924, Mrs. John D. Hertz with Reigh Count in 1928, and Mrs. Payne Whitney with Twenty Grand in 1931.

The Derby contingent of Col. E. R. Bradley, only turfman to win three of these blue ribbon events, has arrived at Churchill Downs to start training. Though Boiler-maker and Broker's Tip are his most likely entries this year, Beefsteak also will be placed in training, and if he develops faster than one of the others, he may be sent to the post in the $50,000 added classic.

Schaeffer Trims Will Hoppe's Lead

Chicago, April 26 —(AP)—With a new high record established, the cushion carom billiard championship match between Jake Schaeffer, Jr., San Francisco and William Hoppe, New York, goes into the third block of the scheduled six-block 1500-point tourney tonight.

Hoppe was still leading today, but Schaeffer had cut the margin to 38 points by winning the second block 250 to 210 and setting up a new high record of 39. Hoppe tied the old half century record of 38 the opening night but could do no better than 28 in a straight run last night.

At the end of the first half of last night's play Hoppe had maintained his 53-point lead, but 20 frames later Schaeffer won the block with a run of 23. In the next four innings Hoppe counted 39 billiards to Jake's 13.

White Sox Search For Lost Recruit

Chicago, April 26 —(AP)—The Chicago White Sox management is still hunting for Joe Chamberlain, the most mysterious recruit of the 1933—or possibly any other—major league season.

With the time for paring the rosters down to 23 men, the Sox front office would like to dispose of Chamberlain an infielder, whose recommendation was quite flattering. It will be necessary, however, to find him before sending him away on option.

Chamberlain was obtained from the Waterloo club of the Mississippi Valley League late last season. He failed to report after leaving the minor league club. The Sox finally caught up with him and sent him a contract for the 1933 season. He returned the signed document, but failed to show up at Pasadena, Calif., when the clan gathered.

Later he was located, appearing somewhat the worse for wear, by Clarence Fieber, recruit left-handed pitcher. However, before Fieber could herd Chamberlain into camp he again vanished.

Air express on U. S. planes during 1932 totaled 1,609,821 pounds.

JEBY, JONES TO APPEAL TO U. S. COURT FOR FUND

Start Legal Action In Contesting Ruling Of Boxing Board

Cleveland, April 26 —(AP)—The "no contest" fight of Ben Jebby and Willie (Gorilla) Jones was headed for the courts today on the heels of the Cleveland Boxing Commission's order suspending both fighters and their managers for a year. Simultaneously, a movement to back the athletes for a return engagement either at a Cleveland suburb or in New York cropped up here.

Representatives of the fighters said they would file suit in court to recover the $5,400 purse the commission ruled they must forfeit for "stalling." It asserted the "stalling" of the two fighters caused a condition of disorder, confusion and near riot.

Jones and Jebby already have been suspended for a year in the 32 states which hold membership in the National Boxing Association but word received here indicated the N. B. A. might reconsider the suspension order, which applied to their managers, Suey Welch of Akron and Hymie Caplin of New York.

Both Jones and Jebby pleaded before the commission that they had done their best in the fight last Wednesday night that resulted in the "no contest" ruling at the end of six of the scheduled twelve rounds.

Jones asserted the booing of the crowd so unnerved him he "could not think very clear" and "for the first time in history, I got a bit rattled." Jebby said, "I fought fair and on the level and no one can tell me different."

Caplin yesterday filed a suit in Federal Court asking $50,000 damages from a local newspaper which he accused of defaming his character in one of several stories it printed about the fight.

Cuts In Excess Of 30 Percent In Veterans' Pension

Indianapolis, Ind., April 26—The following statement has been issued at national headquarters of the American Legion here:

On April 12 Louis Johnson, national commander of the American Legion, called on the President of the United States and presented to him concrete pictures showing the effect of the regulations issued under the Economy Act upon the truly disabled and service connected cases. The effect of the regulations would not cut service connected cases 20 per cent, as indicated by the press of the country, but many of the cuts would be in excess of 30 per cent in the earlier schedules. Examples were furnished such as a low amputation of a major forearm, formerly rated at $70 monthly, while under the schedule now proposed by the Veterans Administration such a loss would receive $40 a month. A low leg amputation, formerly received $44 a month. It would now be rated at $20 a month. The statutory allowance in this kind of cases heretofore has been $25 monthly. This has been reduced to $20 under the new regulations.

Other grave injustices were pointed out. It is believed that these cuts on service connected cases (in many instances they are battle casualties) had not heretofore been called to the attention of the President. The Legion still has faith and confidence that these injustices and many others of like nature which can but crystallize stark disaster for the disabled World War veterans of America will be corrected on the initiative of the President himself before the regulations become effective on July 1.

Aurora Park Will Open Monday May 1

Chicago, April 26 —(AP)—Exposition Park at Aurora will offer $6,400 in purses for handicap and overnight allowance affairs during the first week of its racing season which opens May 1.

Two $1,200 handicap races, the first one the annual Inaugural Handicap to be run on the opening day, will give the stables something to shoot for. The other $1,200 feature will be run Saturday, May 6. The Inaugural will be for three year olds and upward at six furlongs.

Sprinters and distance runners will have two chances each to try for $1,000 purses.

Pennsylvanians To Vote On Blue Law

Harrisburg, Pa., April 26 —(AP)—Punitive blue laws which have guarded the morals and conduct of Pennsylvanians for 139 years have been given their first modernization and today legalization of Sunday baseball and football is up to the voters.

Committing himself for the first time on the question which has caused many memorable legislative battles, Governor Gifford Pinchot last night signed the Schwartz bill to permit each community to decide whether it wants football and baseball between 2 P. M. and 6 P. M. on Sundays.

The voters cannot act on the question until the November elections, so the Governor's action does not affect the present baseball season.

Signing of the bill climaxed a long fight for modification of the Sunday observance laws which "conservatives" have staunchly and successfully defended since 1794.

Schmeling May Keep New Mentor

Berlin, April 26 —(AP)—Max Schmeling, former heavyweight boxing champion, will be allowed to retain his Jewish manager, Joe Jacobs, for all bouts outside the borders of Germany, Wolfgang A. Matthes, secretary of the German Boxing Commission said today.

MONNIE O'DARE, who works in a drug store in Belvedere, a small town, helps to support her mother, her younger sister KAY, and her brother, MARK. She goes to the aid of her older brother, BILL, wrongfully arrested in a garage holding, and CHARLES EUSTACE, handsome newcomer in town, becomes her friend. DAN CARDIGAN, who says he is in love with Monnie, neglects her and Monnie believes SANDRA LAWRENCE, a rich girl who has pretended to be her friend, is trying to get Dan away from her. Monnie feels that she is being deceived and she is cool to him. Kay is disappointed in Belvedere and Monnie worries about her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII

MONNIE made herself proud and cool, answering him. "Yes," she said.

Dan's voice over the wire sounded hurried, vaguely embarrassed. "Monnie, listen. I was in such a rush today. I wanted to talk to you but you know how Mother is. She won't wait."

He paused, evidently waiting for encouragement. Monnie felt a new scorn which somehow buoyed her up and she did not help him out.

After a few seconds he went on eagerly. "How about tonight? We could drive out some place. It's hotter than the hinges out here at the club but it will cool off by 7. We could take a picnic basket, go out on the River Road."

Every pulse in the girl's slim young body was hammering. Every nerve urged her to accept the invitation. But pride held her back. Coolly she said, "I'm sorry but I have another engagement."

It cost her a great deal to say that. It was not true. She had nothing on earth to do that evening but it was time Dan Cardigan was taught a lesson.

"Oh, I see," Dan sounded flat, crestfallen. Monnie exulted in her triumph. But after she had hung up the receiver, after she had gone quietly back to finish her luncheon she felt a little reaction.

"What did he want?" Mrs. O'Dare asked nervously. Her policy in all her children's affairs was one of "hands off" whenever possible. But she could not help noticing the change that had come over Monnie since Dan Cardigan's return. With resentment and anger foreign to her quiet nature she now regarded the Cardigans. Wasn't Monnie Cardigan, formerly rated at $70 monthly, while under the schedule now proposed by the Veterans Administration such a loss would receive $40 a month. A low leg amputation, formerly received $44 a month. It would now be rated at $20 a month. The statutory allowance in this kind of cases heretofore has been $25 monthly. This has been reduced to $20 under the new regulations.

Monnie was putting on her hat before the mirror, only half attending to the conversation. But at Clarissa's name something flashed in her brain. A scrap of gossip which had drifted to her ears in the store. Two old women, their heads together, muttering.

"—that 'Risby Briggs. She's a trial to her parents and no two ways about it. Gallivanting around with travelin' men down at the hotel—"

She allowed nothing of the sudden consternation she felt to show in her face. Those terrible old tabbies talked about everybody anyhow! It didn't mean a thing, the fact that they gossiped about Clarissa who was roly-poly and red-lipped and had a cuddly, kissable face. Only Monnie did wish she knew more about Kay's activities outside the home. Kay was mysterious about her affairs, sullen when questioned. It was impossible for Monnie, working as she did during the day, tired at night, to keep track of her.

"MOMNIE, I forgot to tell you," her mother cried with animation. "Mr. Eustace stopped in this morning to ask if you and Kay would have dinner with him tomorrow night. He included me, too, but I told him I'd rather not come. You young people can have a better time by yourselves. He said he was asking some other. I don't know who—"

"That was foolish of you. He asked because he wanted you," Monnie told her. Some how this message took the sting out of Dan's left-handed invitation. Charles Eustace, who was cultivated and rich and handsome,

Sandra said importantly, "My dear, we talked about you!"

didn't mind letting the whole world know he was friendly with the O'Dares, even if they were poor and lived in a shabby little house on the wrong side of town! "He's nice," Mrs. O'Dare said. "Kay will be wild with joy when I tell her. Poor child, she hasn't had much fun lately! And I keep worrying lest she get so bored with dullness that she'll join that wild crowd in town. Mrs. Merriam was telling me they had to give the Young People's Society a good talking to. Some of the boys brought liquor to the last meeting. The janitor found the bottles next morning when he was sweeping up."

"Imagine not being able to be sure of those infants at a church meeting!" cried Monnie, struck. "But Kay didn't go last time. She said she was tired of all that crowd. They were too slow."

"That," contributed Mrs. O'Dare, "was the night she spent with Clarissa Briggs. Her father and mother went to High Springs. Remember?"

Monnie was putting on her hat before the mirror, only half attending to the conversation. But at Clarissa's name something flashed in her brain. A scrap of gossip which had drifted to her ears in the store. Two old women, their heads together, muttering.

"That was foolish of you. He asked because he wanted you," Monnie told her. Some how this message took the sting out of Dan's left-handed invitation. Charles Eustace, who was cultivated and rich and handsome,

"Let me alone, won't you?" Kay would say, rather sullenly, when questioned. "You never want me to have any fun. Might as well be buried alive—"

Monnie kissed her mother and hurried out. She looked fresh and charming in her thin yellow frock with the brown straw hat. No one would have guessed that she carried with her a burden of worry too great for her 20 years. "I wish," she cried to herself passionately, hurrying down Denny street, "I wish Father were here—"

It was later the same day that Sandra ran in to see her, Sandra, very crisp and fresh and fragrant in embroidered batiste of sheerest white, with an immense hat trimmed with field flowers. Monnie was hot and tired—it was at 5 o'clock—her frock which had seemed so cool and immaculate a few hours earlier was now wilted.

Sandra's tone was light and confidential. Demanding a huge jar of the special bath salts Mr. Vernon always ordered for her, she leaned over the counter, whispering, "My dear, I've such heaps to tell you!"

Monnie pushed back the damp bronze ringlets clustering around her forehead and tried to smile. It was a sorry attempt. She felt out of sorts, angry, suspicious. "Have you? Isn't it a frightful day? I'm perspiring—"

Sandra widened her eyes and flicked her lashes downward in a way she had.

"I saw—guess who?—today," she murmured importantly. "Coolly Monnie said, 'I know. Dan. He told me.'"

Something very like annoyance crept into Sandra's honeyed expression. With an instant flash of prescience Monnie said to herself that Sandra had wanted to make her jealous.

"She's pretending when she says she's my friend," thought the younger girl bitterly. The knowledge made her cold and forlorn. She hadn't many friends. She was too busy and too poor to make them—

Last winter the other girl, rich and easy and cultivated, had made things pleasant for her, had lent her books and invited her to Sunday night suppers. Now everything seemed changed.

Sandra said importantly, "My dear, we talked about you!" "Did you, indeed?" Monnie hated herself when that sarcastic note crept into her voice but she could not keep it out.

"Danny's such a darling," the other continued, lowering her tone so that Miss Anstice Cory who had come in and was pottering around among the toothbrushes, should not overhear her. "He's honestly fond of you, Monnie," she continued with a faint note of patronage.

THE angry color crept into Monnie's cheek and she smiled brilliantly, without meaning. "Really! How nice of him," she said.

"Oh, now, don't misunderstand me," Sandra drawled. "Dan's a bit of a charmer. We both know that. I honestly feel, Monnie, (this with another side glance at Miss Cory who was near-sighted but far from deaf) "that Dan will never be himself to one woman. He's the—frightful type—"

"Was that what you wanted to tell me?" Monnie asked, amber eyes darkening with repressed fury.

"Don't be cross," Sandra coaxed. "What I really wanted to say, Monnie, was that I think you're wasting your time, watching and worrying about him—" "I didn't know I was doing that," Monnie returned proudly. "Ah, but, my dear, those of us who know you best realize you care for Dan. Of course we do!"

"Did you, indeed?" Monnie could not keep the sarcastic note from her voice.

For an instant Sandra slipped her white, beautifully manicured hand over the other's and Monica was conscious of the contrast. She had helped Mr. Vernon open a packing case that afternoon and had broken a nail.

"When Dan telephoned me after lunch," she told Sandra, "and asked me to go out with him tonight I refused."

"My dear, you did?" Sandra quite glowed. "I think you were perfectly right. I think that's just the medicine he needs. He'll begin to realize how spoiled he is. You've been too sweet with him always—let him treat you just as he liked and then let him come around—"

Sandra seemed quite excited. Her voice raced on, with heat. "Why, everyone has been talking about it. I've told a dozen people, myself: 'Take my word for it, Monica O'Dare doesn't care that for Dan. She's got heaps of young men.'"

Perhaps, Monnie thought, after she had wrapped Sandra's package and said good-by to her, she misjudged her friend. Perhaps Sandra was really and truly her champion. "It's my nasty, suspicious nature, I guess," she thought ruefully. "It's natural for Dan to see a lot of her. They belong in the same set—I don't. Perhaps Sandra is right, and a dose of his then let him come around—"

Miss Anstice came up at that moment with the toothbrush she had selected. She peered near-sightedly at Monnie.

"What's this I hear," she cried cheerily, "about your young sister's leaving us and going to New York?"

"It's news to me," Monnie told her. What was Kay planning now?

BRENNAN FIGHTS FOR INQUIRY IN CEMENT PRICES

Congressman Will Insist On Federal Investigation

Washington, April 26 —(AP)—In the face of what he declares to be "unfair business tactics," Martin A. Brennan, Democratic Representative-at-large from Illinois, announced his determination to fight through Congress his resolution to bring about a Federal Trade Commission probe of the cement industry.

Brennan in his resolution, charged that cement manufacturers banded together to boost unfairly the price of their products so that road building in Illinois, Indiana and Iowa is at a standstill.

"In Illinois," he said, "manufacturers are demanding $1.62 per barrel for cement shipped to the point of destination. Figures made available to me would indicate that $1 per barrel would be fair."

After searching through legal records over the week-end, he declared he was convinced the cement manufacturers could be prosecuted for their acts.

"It is not a violation of the law," he said, "or manufacturers to collect from one another their bids on work. It is sometimes commendable when manufacturers all quote identical figures—providing those figures are within reason."

"But in the present case there are many plainly illegal phases. It is unquestionably a violation of the law when the manufacturers band themselves together for the purpose of quoting identical prices when, by so doing, they raise their prices to make an unfair profit."

The Ashton Woman's Club had a most interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. Carson Cross Friday.

The program was a "Treasure Program" each guest bringing some highly treasured article. The assortment was large and the discussions telling the histories of the articles, were most interesting.

Among the treasures brought were a tiny vest, one worn with the first suit of clothes of the father of the member. A beautiful Italian shawl, part of a trousseau, was displayed by another. A lovely knitted ball of yarn made by the mother of another member while the mother was making a visit to England, intrigued the attention of all.

A book, given her mother as a reward of excellence in school work as a child in England, was another treasure. Treasured quilts and many other interesting treasures were shown and their histories made the afternoon pass all too quickly.

The next meeting of the club is the annual May Breakfast on May 6. It will be served by the O. E. S.

April 30th, is scheduled for the spring pigeon race of many Chicago pigeon lots. This race will be for old birds. Ashton is the first liberating station in the training of the birds. The release of the birds, about 5,000 in number, will take place about 6 o'clock in the morning.

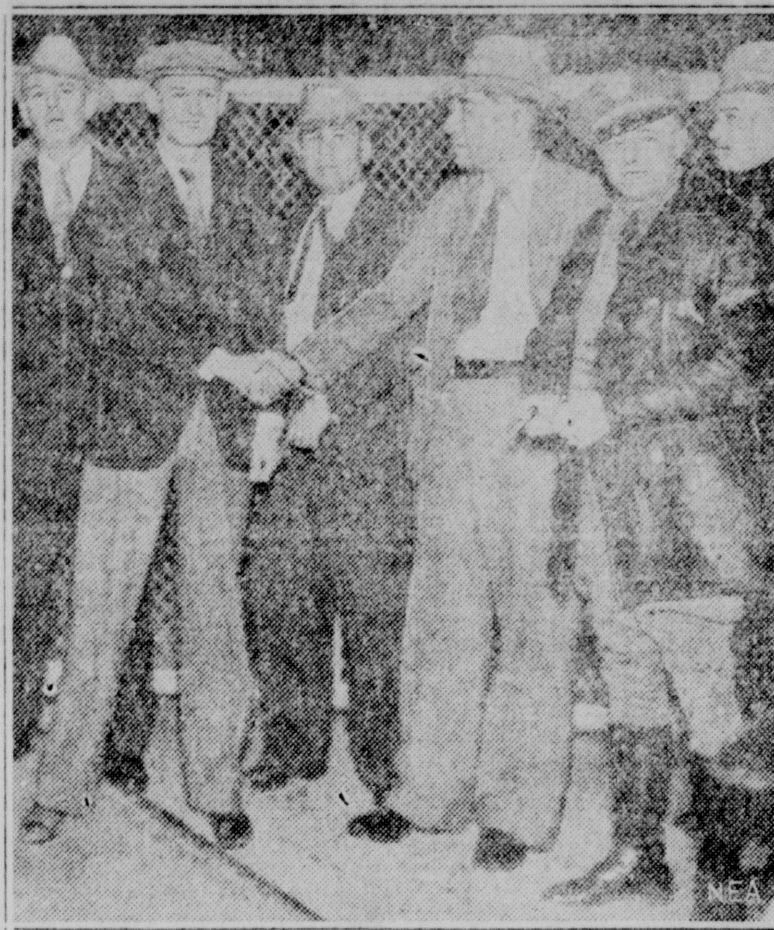

Many local admirers of this sport will be on hand to assist in the release of the birds, and many enthusiasts from other communities will be present to witness the event. All the birds are released at the same time, a signal being given by the man in charge and instantly the air is filled with the feathered up-winged bodies. It takes a very short time for some birds to gain their bearing, and they are immediately off. Others are slower in getting their bearings and fly around for some time. It is a beautiful sight to witness and both the spring and fall flights see many interested fans eager to assist in the release of the birds.

Barring accidents, each bird instinctively is led to return to the home nest where it was hatched and reared. Some birds never reach the home loft, but the large proportion do. Competing with 29 birds from 29 lofts, "Black Beauty" made the fastest flight for old birds in 1932 in the Ben DuBaets 300-mile derby. This bird averaged 1,349.17 yards per minute in its return flight. The young bird winning in this same derby made a record of 1,645.47 yards per minute in the 500-mile trek.

The last flight of the season is from Rawlins, Wyoming, a distance of 1,000 miles from Chicago. Ashton has a flying pigeon club, the "Ace High Club." This spring they plan some interesting flights and will soon have their plans ready for publication.
